

---

FS: MPC 1K

Posted by papertiger - 2006/01/19 01:54

---

ok, thought i'd let the elektronists get first dibs. mint condition mpc 1k with 128 MB RAM expansion installed. the manual has been read, may have thumb prints on it, but the machine is impeccable. i'll even throw in a usb cable, cause i'm a hell of a gal.

contact me if interested.

-M

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by milkmansnd - 2006/01/19 06:24

---

what the fuck is wrong with you? :-D

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by actual - 2006/01/19 15:21

---

milkmansnd wrote:

what the fuck is wrong with you? :-D

milkman always had a way with women! :lol:

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by 5inusoid - 2006/01/19 15:40

---

milkmansnd wrote:

what the fuck is wrong with you? :-D

You took the words right out of my mouth.

2.0 is going to be released, like, tommorrow.

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by milkmansnd - 2006/01/19 18:04

---

papertiger and I have made friends, so I feel ok saying that.

yeah - wait for 2.0, then make the call.

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by papertiger - 2006/01/20 03:17

---

Milkman -

Your poetic use and command of the english language are rivaled only by your eloquence. :-P

---

I've got my reasons for selling the MPC, and it's not because I don't like it -- I like it a lot, in fact, but I find that it's getting in the way of me making music rather than helping me be productive. I love the mono sequencer, and would prefer to use it instead of the MPC's sequencer. Which would leave the MPC as "just" a sampler, which is fine, but I don't think that it meets my needs in terms of sound mangling/sound design possibilities. Yes, I know that's not what it's designed for, but it's the closest thing I could find that had the right balance of features in a tabletop sampler.

So I've gone back to the drawing board. I tried the MPC, I liked it, but it's getting in the way. To me, that's enough reason. OS 2.0 or not.

". . . cause when you realize you are not using that gear you can resell it and put the money back into your pocket at a time when you might need it more."

. . . Should sound familiar. . .

And last but not least -- " I do what I want. Gosh!!!" :-o

-M

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by milkmansnd - 2006/01/20 06:54

---

yeah, but uaually that period of time is more than 3 weeks :-D

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by ggoodwin - 2006/01/20 07:26

---

3 weeks? that's just....pathological :lol:

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by papertiger - 2006/01/20 13:02

---

Actually, milk, it's been closer to 5 weeks (does that downgrade me from pathological to just crazy?).

I tried a piece of gear, I liked it, but since I don't have a lot of time to make music, i would rather sacrifice the MPC for the sake of simplicity and productivity than sell one of the elektrons. using all three just doesn't work for me (Forgive me, Dr. Dre, for I have sinned). if I had more time to fiddle with all three, then I would keep it. but I don't, so off it goes, hopefully to a good home. Perhaps Milk's Home for Wayward and Neglected Gear? :-P

I'm going to take my own advice from another thread and learn what I have.

Counsel rests, but reserves the right to present additional evidence in response to any new arguments presented by the Prosecution. :-o

-M

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by - 2006/01/20 15:14

---

papertiger wrote:

Actually, milk, it's been closer to 5 weeks (does that downgrade me from pathological to just crazy?).

---

I tried a piece of gear, I liked it, but since I don't have a lot of time to make music, i would rather sacrifice the MPC for the sake of simplicity and productivity than sell one of the elektrons. using all three just doesn't work for _me_ (Forgive me, Dr. Dre, for I have sinned). if I had more time to fiddle with all three, then I would keep it. but I don't, so off it goes, hopefully to a good home. Perhaps Milk's Home for Wayward and Neglected Gear? :-P

I'm going to take my own advice from another thread and learn what I have.

Counsel rests, but reserves the right to present additional evidence in response to any new arguments presented by the Prosecution. :-o

-M

Do what you want. I can decide within a month if the machine is worth having or not.

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by papertiger - 2006/01/20 18:44

Yes. Yes, I think I will do what I want.

Good talk. :-P

-M

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by 5inusoid - 2006/01/20 23:28

5inusoid wrote:

milkmansnd wrote:

what the fuck is wrong with you? :-D

You took the words right out of my mouth.

2.0 is going to be released, like, tommorrow.

WOW. I called it to the day...

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by ingrid - 2006/01/20 23:55

No one jumped on Allerian for selling a piece of gear you all love just as much, if not more, than the mpc. Why is that?

---

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by Allerian - 2006/01/21 01:40

That entire thread was me getting jumped on for my apparently insane price. Why'd I sell it? It took me away from the MnM, which wasn't cool.

Some solid tunes there, Ingrid.

---

=====

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by ingrid - 2006/01/21 02:27

---

Thanks Allerian :) Sounds like you made the right decision about the UW. I know that's the same reason why papertiger wants to sell her MPC. She obviously never should have bought the it in the first place.

I think you're all jealous, that's what I think. Can't blame you though. :)

=====

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by - 2006/01/22 23:02

---

well I am not jealous - I have the MPC already and its got its own layer of dust on it thank you very much - I do not need a dusty MPC from papertiger's house! I am not a collector of dust!

the only thing I use my MPC for is playing out live, I just sample the various other large synths in my studio and bring the MPC instead. Other than that, the thing collects dust - and since I have not gigged out since - cough - July... well, you get the gist of it. The MPC is a great tool for live, but in this day and age there is not much use for it in a "studio" setting - any DAW pretty much smokes it.

crap, not logged in!

- Milkmansound

=====

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by ingrid - 2006/01/22 23:15

---

Well...speak for yourself Milkman. I'm jealous as hell! Now if someone could just give me a mpc... *wink, wink* That'd be really great. My life would be perfect's what I tell ya. ;)

=====

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by papertiger - 2006/01/26 20:15

---

sold.

se acabo.

=====

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by jsrockit - 2006/01/27 02:17

---

Friend wrote:

well I am not jealous - I have the MPC already and its got its own layer of dust on it thank you very much - I do not need a dusty MPC from papertiger's house! I am not a collector of dust!

the only thing I use my MPC for is playing out live, I just sample the various other large synths in my studio and bring the MPC instead. Other than that, the thing collects dust - and since I have not gigged out since - cough - July... well, you get the gist of it. The MPC is a great tool for live, but in this day and age there is not much use for it in a "studio" setting - any DAW pretty much smokes it.

---

crap, not logged in!

- Milkmansound

Hmm...how about the feel of the MPC's swing? Even without swing, it gives your beats a different feel than a DAW. I find it alot funner to use than a DAW as well. However, I'm making simple hip-hop and it seems to be the tool of choice for those beats.

=====

Re: FS: MPC 1K

Posted by - 2006/01/27 03:44

---

Friend wrote:

well I am not jealous - I have the MPC already and its got its own layer of dust on it thank you very much - I do not need a dusty MPC from papertiger's house! I am not a collector of dust!

the only thing I use my MPC for is playing out live, I just sample the various other large synths in my studio and bring the MPC instead. Other than that, the thing collects dust - and since I have not gigged out since - cough - July... well, you get the gist of it. The MPC is a great tool for live, but in this day and age there is not much use for it in a "studio" setting - any DAW pretty much smokes it.

crap, not logged in!

- Milkmansound

What about sitting with the thing on your lap late at night and just banging out some beats? I get stuff done that way at moments when I'm just sick of using computers...

I dunno if that's a 'studio' setting but its a big part of how I accomplish things.

=====