
Anyone using Melodyne? Looks like fun.

Posted by sensorium - 2005/12/18 01:40

Check it out if you haven't already:

http://www.celemony.com/cms/index.php?id=m3_info

=====

Re: Anyone using Melodyne? Looks like fun.

Posted by - 2005/12/18 01:42

I use it and it's not that great if you're not a good singer. However it is cool to muck vocals with.

=====

Re: Anyone using Melodyne? Looks like fun.

Posted by Jyoti - 2005/12/18 22:58

Yep, I've been using it a lot. Obviously, it's great for fixing dodgy vocals but it's real power is in mangling audio in mad ways. It's fun to put drums, rhythm guitar, long samples etc through.

I just used the formant shifter to make some girl versions of me singing. They're good but a bit... disturbing. :-D

=====

Re: Anyone using Melodyne? Looks like fun.

Posted by actuel - 2005/12/18 23:11

i used to use Melodyne when i was working with a couple of MC's. at that time there wasn't really anything that was as powerful as Melodyne...well maybe Antares but Melodyne was killin' it.

Motu's DP4.6 now has what i needed from Melodyne but its built into the DAW. if your a mac user its worth looking into: DP4.6 linker

...whatever get the job done ;)

peace

a

=====