That is nuts. I'd rather get a Prophet 5 for that price. People are insane for such spectacles.

Pre-ordered! I like surprises on vinyl!

Great artwork and their 'compfire headphase' is a magical album to me, that album was looped all night long while I crashed and tried to sleep on a couch at a friend. I woke up the next day and it was under my skin! :)

Did anyone happen to crack the code on the BOC website yet??

<http://cosecha-transmisiones.com/>

They discuss the topic at pitchfork

So excited for this album pre-ordered the vinyl!!

Vinyl FOREVER!!

Peace

p.s. I wonder what gear they're using on the new album? maybe Elektron Octatrack?

P.s.s. I guess someone did already!!

Go to <http://www.boardsofcanada.com/> and input 699742628315717228936557813386519225 with the top row keyboard numbers pad. Or just check out the video and (parts of) a new track here;

Yeah. Premiered here in the UK on Zane Lowes radio show last night.
It's up on the Warp soundcloud too.

Classic BOC - bodes well for a great album.

Missed the live transmission â€“ it was at 5 AM here in Japan. But! Just downloaded it from iTunes, and it's immense! Sounds very . . . mature. Even on first listen (and not even all of the tracks â€“ ha!), I'm gonna say this is probably their best so far.

Jacquard Causeway blows my head off... fucking brilliant album as a whole that grows on me with more and more intensity with each listen... also I'm drunk right now but holy crap it's amazing.

I was also recently told by someone that Jacquard Causeway is deceptively in 3/4... which I didn't take note of while listening.

Also, this is a great interview...

<http://www.nytimes.com/2013/06/12/arts/music/tomorrows-harvest-by-boards-of-canada.html?pagewanted=all> with my favorite moment as "Thereâ€™s a definite theme on the record. Without blowing it all for the listeners, thereâ€™s a cor to it about an apparently irreversible vector weâ€™re already on as a species."
