
Suggestion: Separate Sections for MD / MnM / OT

Posted by The Seadweller - 2010/11/23 22:01

I am a new member and owner of a machinedrum but i have been watching this site for quite a long time as i have been interested in buying a Machinedrum

I found really chaotic and confusing the fact that in a single section of the forum (ELEKTRON GEAR) you can find posts for two different instruments...

This is really counter productive. :blink:

And it is going to be worse (it is already becoming..) with the release of Octatrack

Please MAKE SEPARATE SECTIONS for Machindrum, Monomachine and OCtatrack!!!

+1 as well, though we'd always want to maintain a general Elektron Gear section. Lots of posts concern interconnection of MD/MnM, and now that the OT is upon us I'm sure discussion of these issues will skyrocket.

As far as I know the site is going to have a bit of an overhaul in the future... until then enjoy it as it is, explore the wiki and files sections for machine related tips and tricks.

I feel that. I can already see a lot of new user accounts here just to ask questions about the MIDI flow & audio chain of command for the 'trinity'. It's going to be wonderfully hectic here for the next wee bit. :D

thanks for the suggestion -- I think it's a good one. give us some time and hopefully we can get it done sooner rather than later. . .

. . . or at least before 12/20!

No, it would break the forum up.

As it is now everyone is in the same group which I believe creates this nice community.

Why fix somethin that aint broke?

If a newb cant do a little searching and is confused then som nam nah (tough luck)

As mention, for missing the machinedrumdjproject....

I tend to search the forum for interesting topics by bookmarking the MORE link on the right hand side.

The big thing, as with any forum, is really good subject headings.

This site rocks.

peace

Ha so true. Try going to Gearslutz and typing in anything you actually want to learn/read about... :P

Agreed, we don't get THAT many threads per day here IMO.

I like the community feel of a single forum too!

One idea is to have a drop down selection box on new topics, MD, MnM, Octatrack & General and you have to choose one related to the device you're asking about before you can submit. Then have a filter selection box under the search field, when you select one without a search term it brings up all the threads relating to that device. Then you could search within those results.

This type of tagging/filtering would be great and should be fairly easy to implement via fireboard. best of both worlds, one big happy elektron family :kiss: with ability to navigate to all the useful info more easily :bonus:

Nice suggestion Dalski :side:

Ooooh... that's a good idea. :)

+1 for Dalski's plan. Otherwise, at very least, separate feature request sections for each instrument.

Yes! Daliski's idea is way better than my suggestion!

+1 for filtering!

cool idea, although how about just make a forum section called "Octatrack"?

and the other "Elektron Gear" relates to Machinedrum, Monomachine, Turbo Midi, and the venerable ninja Sidstation.

Either this or Dalski's earlier suggestion would be very helpful given the number of Octatrack threads that are being posted.

i made a similar suggestion a while ago and it was turned down. i guess eventually the OT traffic will die down and things will get back to normal but i think over time it'll be easier to find old threads and stuff and keep track of things if each machine has a sub forum...

just a thought.

i think that separate sections by machine for specific posts concerning only this machine would be a great improvement and really time-saving.

This is still top of my wish list. Separate sub forums for each machine. Nothing rules out a subforum for topics related to more than one machine.

I think it would be a good idea to make a subfolder for each product

- Analog four
- Octatrack
- Monomachine
- Machinedrum
- Other

â€œOtherâ€• could be used for â€œsid stationâ€• or maybe when a new product is coming until they get their own folder. Because I think that the â€œElektron Gearâ€• is a mess right now with all the products in one folder.

With the increasing number of machines, it becomes difficult to find clearly informations. I find that this organization is increasingly needed.

Also, putting "Expectation & wonderig topics" in a dedicated category.

There were fewer products when we started the forum in 2005. elektronauts.com will completely reimagine the online user community.

To the powers that be... as/when new forum appears; can we have a separate sub-forum for MiniCommand programming?
